

'5 Live' style phone in technology for fans groups

Confabulate Limited has worked with Steve Wraith and Andrew Davis and produced around 130 weekly broadcasts of Toon Talk—a phone in for NUFC fans.

We've now developed an Android app and supporting web services to allow other fans groups to host their own live radio shows, and save these shows as podcasts. We've linked the system to the telephone network, and will issue local numbers for each group so that, for example, supporters of Histon Football Club would dial into 01223 number, or FC United of Manchester would have an 0161 number.

The host prepares for the show by running the app and connecting a mic/headphone (although the show can be run from the built-in mic). The host arranges guests to call in at certain times—he/she can see them arrive and identify them from their phone number.

The host uploads any pre-recorded interviews, jingles and other sound effects, and can then play them into the show at the touch of a button. To start the live stream, the host just presses 'Start' and the 'ON-AIR' flag shows that the broadcast is live. The screen also allows the host to see (and respond to) messages sent to the show twitter account and re-tweet if necessary

What do we want from you?

We are interested in building audience numbers so are willing to provide this service free of charge.

There would be no cost to the fan's groups—all they'd need to use an existing Android device (phone or tablet) and connect to a WiFi Internet connection. We'd set up an account and a link from where the show can be heard and listened to later.
